CALCism creator-curated framework

CALCism — Cosmic Anarcho-Libertarian Communalism
Creator/reference name: Sora Izumi Dao (□ □ □)
Motto: “No theory is sacred enough to override reality.”

Philosophical foundations: materialism/physicalism and methodological naturalism; critical inquiry and evidence; selected influences from Buddhism (impermanence and compassion), Daoism (wu wei) and Confucianism (responsibility and relational care). These are selective influences, not claims that traditions are identical.

Political and economic orientation: anarchist communism, communalism, worker self-management, common/social ownership, mutual aid, free association, direct democracy and confederation. Proposed transition: Platformism → Social Mutualism → Social Collectivism → a stateless councilist confederacy.

Ethics and method: moral anti-realism/error-theory-informed analysis, material consequentialism and practical virtue; examine causes, evidence, effects and flourishing rather than treating “good” and “evil” as objective properties. Competing theories and objections remain open to consideration.

Wider horizon: ecological responsibility, ecocentrism, cosmopolitan solidarity, anti-authoritarianism, feminism and cultural-philosophical syncretism. CALCism is a revisable synthesis, not an established academic consensus or unquestionable doctrine.

Religion and socialism pathway

Religious, philosophical and socialist traditions
The catalogue compares socialist, anarchist, egalitarian and social-ethical interpretations across Buddhism, Daoism, Confucianism, Hindu traditions, Islam, Judaism and Christianity. It does not assume that these traditions are inherently socialist or politically uniform. “Buddhist socialism”, “Daoist anarchism” and “Confucian social ethics” refer to particular interpretations and comparisons, not consensus views shared by all practitioners.

Confirmed entry: Dhammic Socialism — Buddhadasa Bhikkhu (catalogue year recorded as 1993; Intermediate), under Religion, Socialism and Liberation Theology. The catalogue includes the entry. Check the specific edition and licence before downloading or redistributing. Resource: https://www.suanmokkh.org/books/83

Moral anti-realism and related positions

Moral Anti-Realism, Moral Nihilism & the Illusion of Good and Evil
Moral error theory: ordinary moral claims purport to describe objective moral facts, but such facts do not exist. Moral nihilism rejects morality in a specified sense, often objective or categorical moral truths. Moral anti-realism is a broader family of views denying mind-independent moral facts. Moral subjectivism grounds judgements in attitudes or perspectives. Moral relativism makes judgements dependent on cultural or conceptual frameworks. Moral naturalism is a contrasting realist family that seeks to ground moral facts in natural facts. These positions are not synonyms. Nietzsche critiques inherited moral systems but should not simply be classified as a modern error theorist. Sam Harris's The Moral Landscape is included as a contrasting argument against moral scepticism.
